4. How to deal with a friend who is about to drive under the influence

Don't let him/her do anything not to do with an intoxicated person. Don't attempt calling your parents for a lift or paying for a taxi. Your role is to try to prevent your friends from hurting themselves or someone else.

5. How to drive safely while talking on a cell phone

Most states ban all cell phone use by novice drivers, so be sure you know if these provisions apply while you live. If it's permissible to use a cell, always use a hands-free device so you can keep your hands on the wheel and your eyes on the road. Learn how to pair your phone with the car's Bluetooth system. Don't even think about texting while driving (no, not even at stoplights).
